Students are responsible for bringing handouts to class. All handouts are on the course TWEN page (<https://lawschool.westlaw.com/twen>), and select Writing and Legal Reasoning.

*Writing classes are intentionally kept small for an ideal learning environment. You will be assigned a professor during your first class. Your class assignments will be posted to the course TWEN page on Westlaw(<https://lawschool.westlaw.com/twen>). If you need help logging in, contact Dan Harayda (harayda@mslaw.edu) or Mick Coyne (mick@mslaw.edu).

Please note: The syllabus is subject to change. You will be informed of changes as they occur.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course is designed to address the needs particular to first-semester law students. In addition to improving your writing and grammar skills, you will learn various skills crucial to your legal studies, exam-taking, and writing tasks. You will begin by learning how to conduct legal analysis and spot and analyze legal issues that will benefit you in exam taking and the memoranda and brief writing you will do in subsequent semesters. You will become proficient in briefing cases and writing in the IRAC formula.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS:

Grading: Your final class grade will be based on case briefs, quizzes, in-class writings, three prepared papers, and a final exam. Possible points per assignment:

Case Briefs (2 x 10 pts)	20 pts
Writing Skills Exercises (only 4 will count)	40 pts
In-class Writing (6 x 15 pts)	90 pts
Outline	25 pts
Analysis Paper (IRAC)	25 pts
Inter-office Legal Memo First Draft	50 pts
Inter-office Legal Memo Final Draft	75 pts
Final Exam	100 pts
Total:	425 pts

Attendance Policy: Students must attend all classes. If a student has more than one unexcused absence, we will lower their final course grade by 1/3.

No make-up of in-class work will be granted for any unexcused absence (as determined by the professor). The professor can, however, consider a lack of attendance and lack of class participation in determining the final grade, along with any other acts of unprofessionalism, as explained below:

A critical component of practicing law is always acting professionally. Since law school is where you learn to become a lawyer, you should always handle yourself professionally. This includes but is not limited to attending class regularly and on time, submitting assignments on time and in the appropriate format, actively participating in class, turning cell phones off before class, and not surfing the Internet or using e-mail during class. Also, how you conduct yourself in your interactions—both in person and via e-mail—with the professor and others reflects your professionalism.

Assignments: Cases for case brief assignments are in the coursebook for your substantive class unless otherwise stated. Other supplemental material will be posted under the Course Material on the course TWEN page. Check TWEN for every class.

Late Policy: Assignments are due at the beginning of your regular class time on the due date. Any assignment submitted late will have 10% of the total possible points deducted per calendar day (including the day it is due if not turned in at the beginning of class.)

Every assignment you submit must be your work, including case briefs, outlines, and papers. Please read the course overview, plagiarism handouts, and plagiarism warning; submit your signed plagiarism warning on the first day of class. All documents are located on the course TWEN page under course materials. Please review the MSLAW policy on Academic Honesty.
